I just proposed a compromise to becky, which was accepted, that said in mid-summer, Newsfeed will become it's own page, and the next gen of the WOFMB.

SO COOL YO JETS PLEASE

mods let this through

@Night You've summed up what I've seen very well. This really is a beautiful community and I've never seen one like it before. We are looking into our options of how we can make the Newsfeed alone accessible in some standalone fashion, beyond just making the whole game more accesssible. All your posts here have made it very clear that that's something we need to consider seriously.

puts on shades alexa, play you're welcome

Correction: while Becky said the mods are looking for a way to make the Newsfeed accessible in a standalone way, she didn't 100% confirm it. There is still a chance that we won't get our own new forums website. I think that's pretty important to consider the possibility that it won't be the way Night has portrayed it. Don't start celebrating yet.

well, with how it's portrayed, and how much emotion you guys have displayed, they see that they have seriously screwed up, and are on damage control right now. it's highly likely that that will happen, so yes, a chance, but a small chance.

I will keep hoping, but since at this time it isn't true just yet...I can't keep all my hopes up. For one, giving Newsfeed its own site/platform would technically be almost the same as keeping the forums up now. After all, the mods are shutting this site down due to maintaintence, and to me personally, it wouldn't make much sense for them to just set up a similar situation with Newsfeed. However, I put faith that the mods will do whatever they can and use their advanced skills in doing so.

Besides, I think that compromise was probably already pondered upon before anyone on this MB suggested it, hence the mods didn't tell us about it.
